

MISREPRESENTED FACTS IN SECURING SIGNATURES?

P. H. LUCHT AND BERNARD LUCHT MAKE THIS CHARGE IN SWORN AFFIDAVIT.

SLOW PROGRESS MADE

Are Listing the Entire Number of Signers of Recall in Alphabetical Order.

Work of listing the seven hundred odd names on the recall petition in alphabetical order is taking the time of the city clerk and his assistants today. Later they will be checked over with the last poll list and the final report made to the council.

Many persons whose names appeared on the published list state they signed the papers under misrepresentation the following being one of the affidavits signed today:

STATE OF WISCONSIN,
Rock County, ss.
Bernard Lucht and P. H. Lucht, being each sworn, for himself say that he signed the so-called recall petition for each of the City officers on the representation that such officers had squandered the city's money and were about to make other large and extravagant expenditures, to-wit: $18,000, for some automobile fire trucks; that it was represented to be a protest on the part of the business men and merchants against this extravagance and that all the business men would sign it; that neither of these affidavits were correctly informed about the character of the proceeding but supposed it was a protest on the part of the business men and for the purpose of stopping the alleged extravagances and if it could not be stopped then to have a recall; that the affidavits were both busy at the time and did not take the pains to read said petition or inquire further concerning it, that if it were not for such misrepresentation these affidavits would not have signed said papers and now desire that their names be stricken from the list.

SUBSCRIPTION LIST GROWING RAPIDLY

Eighteen Thousand Dollars Mark Passed in Amounts Pledged for Remodeling of Y. M. C. A. Building.

Over eighteen thousand dollars of the amount necessary for the remodeling of the Y. M. C. A. building has been subscribed, according to Secretary J. C. Kline today, and it is hoped that within a short time the full amount necessary, $23,500, will be pledged. The list of subscriptions is growing rapidly less than seventeen thousand dollars having been subscribed on Saturday morning. By diligent work, however, enough was secured to bring the figures over the eighteen thousand dollar mark. It will be necessary to have the full amount subscribed by January 10, as the directors of the association are anxious to have the work on the building started as soon after that date as is possible. A great deal of interest in the project has been shown thus far, and the amount subscribed by young men, not all of whom are present members of the association. It will be necessary to have the full amount pledged, however, before work can be started. The work will give employment to a large number of laborers, and will give Janesville, without a doubt, the finest association building for a city of its size, in the state. One of the features to be installed when the building is made, and one that will appeal to people from other cities of towns who come here to shop, is the waiting room for strangers in the city, which is to be opened up when the remodeling has been completed. A room will be set aside for the accommodation of visitors from out of town who desire to wait for trains there.

COMPLAIN THAT FERRETS ARE USED FOR HUNTING

Protests Made to Game Warden W. P. Mason That Law is Being Violated in Parts of County.

Complaint has been made to Game Warden W. P. Mason that ferrets are being used for hunting in parts of Rock county. Section 45-60C, Chapter 551, of the statute of 1911, states that "it shall be unlawful and is hereby prohibited to hunt, take, kill, or pursue rabbits with ferrets, or to have a ferret or ferrets in possession while hunting." The penalties for the violation of this law are from $10 to $25 fine.

Leave For South: Col. E. O. Kimberley and wife expect to start in the morning for Chicago, to spend Christmas with their daughter and family. On Saturday they will start for New Orleans, to remain for a brief time, and then return eastward to Pass Christian, Gulfport and Biloxi. If conditions at the latter place are satisfactory they may remain here for four weeks and then continue on to Pensacola and De Funiak Springs, Florida, to remain some weeks.

Arrangements Complete: Arrangements for the Lakota club's annual dance to be given at Assembly hall on the evening of December 26, are complete and the affair is expected to eclipse all previous efforts of the club. Hatch's full orchestra will furnish the music. The decorations promise to be novel and of great beauty.

ATTEMPT AT MURDER OF INDIAN VICEROY

LORD HARDINGE AND WIFE NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH WHEN BOMB IS THROWN AT ROYAL HOWDAH.

AT STATELY CEREMONY

Man Hurls Explosive From House Top—Royal Procession Was Entering New Capital—Viceroy Only Slightly Hurt.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Delhi, India, Dec. 23.—Baron Hardinge viceroy of India, was wounded and an attendant was killed by a bomb hurled at the viceroy from a house-top as he was entering the new capital in state today. The bomb struck the howdah or basket of the Viceroy's elephant, killing the attendant instantly. The extent of the Viceroy's wounds were not known. He was removed to a hospital.

Making Entry in State.
The bomb thrower's attempt to kill Lord Hardinge was almost successful. The viceroy was making entry in state to Delhi as the last of the ceremonies in connection with the transfer of the capital from Calcutta to Delhi. The transfer was made in October last, but Lord Hardinge was not to take formal possession of his new quarters until today.

A large gathering of troops, officials and Punjab chiefs, was present to welcome the viceroy party. Its splendid elephant procession had just left the railway station, passing through Chandai Chowk when the bomb was thrown. It was hurled by a man standing on a house top and it struck the howdah in which were Lord and Lady Hardinge.

The attendant holding a large parasol over the vice-regal pair was instantly killed as the bomb exploded. Lord Hardinge was wounded in the shoulder, but how seriously could not be determined in the confusion which followed the bomb throwing.

He was hurriedly removed to a hospital. Lady Hardinge was unhurt but was much shaken by the explosion. The bomb was very powerful. Slight Shoulder Wound.

On arrival at the hospital surgeons found that the wound in the baron's shoulder was slight. Lady Hardinge suffered severely from shocks and was found necessary to apply soothing remedies.

The viceroy's parasol bearer had been killed outright and another attendant seriously wounded by fragments of the bomb.

The ceremonies were interrupted for only a short period while the viceroy and his wife were being conveyed to the hospital and vice-regal residence respectively. Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson, financial member of the council of the governor general of India, took the viceroy's place in the procession which then proceeded on its way through the new imperial city to the durbar camp where a great number of Rajas and other Indian chieftains were gathered.

Sir Guy then took up his position in front of the vice-regal dais and read aloud a dispatch from Baron Hardinge saying he was only slightly injured. The reading of the message was received with prolonged cheering.

Natives Are Indignant.
The attempt on Baron Hardinge roused feeling of intense indignation both among the natives and the British officials present, as he is one of the most popular men who have ever ruled in India. For a long period there has been a full in the native agitation which has at various times led to assassinations of high officials. The attack on Baron Hardinge by a fanatic, therefore, came with greater unexpectedness. Only a short time ago the viceroy himself wrote to the India office in London saying the country was quiet and the prospects for his official entry into Delhi were most favorable.

The bomb was thrown as the great procession was passing through the Chandai Chowk, which is a long narrow typical oriental street containing many merchandising places. The stores are mostly one story, but some of them rise to the height of two stories. A street car line runs the whole length of the Chandai Chowk, but on account of the importance of the day's event the service had been suspended.

In Regal Procession.
The viceroy's elephant was an enormous animal. The driver sat between his ears guiding him in the usual native way by tapping him on the forehead with a steel spike. Behind the driver was the great howdah, a box-like construction fixed on the elephant's saddle. The howdah was covered with imperial purple drapery decorated with gold lace and tassels and in it were seated the viceroy and the vicereine and at their backs stood another native attendant holding over their heads the great parasol which indicates the royal dignity.

Owing to the lowness of the houses in the Chandai Chowk the assassin who stood on one of the roofs was only a few feet from the viceroy and vicereine. The bomb, which was evidently intended to explode by concussion, burst with terrific force. The native holding the umbrella was blown from his position and instantly killed while the driver sitting in front of the howdah was wounded in eight places.

The escape of Baron and Lady Hardinge was well nigh miraculous. The missile fell only a foot or two from its target. The great procession immediately came to a standstill and a crowd of officials rushed up and found the viceroy bleeding and pale while the vicereine was terribly shaken.

Several Arrests Made.
The police surrounded the house

London, Dec. 23.—The peace conference resumed its sitting in St. James palace this afternoon. The plenipotentiaries of Bulgaria, Servia, Montenegro, Greece and Turkey arrived in the picture gallery of the palace at exactly 4 o'clock.

A further relaxation of international tension was brought about today when Austria-Hungary informed the other European powers that she considers the Balkan difficulty approaching a satisfactory solution. This, she said, is a result of Serbia's action in apologizing to Austria-Hungary for the incident connected with the treatment of the proposed arrangement to give her port facilities on the Adriatic sea without territorial possession. Besides these assurances from Vienna another helpful factor in the situation was the audience given today by the Emperor Francis Joseph to the new Serbian minister, M. Jovanovitch, when both cordially expressed hope for a speedy re-establishment of complete friendship between Vienna and Belgrade.

The Children's Theater is located on the roof of the Century Theater. It is a completely equipped playhouse in every respect, with a seating accommodation of 800. The funds for the enterprise were provided largely by William K. Vanderbilt.

FIREMEN EXTINGUISH BLAZE OUTSIDE CITY UNDER DIFFICULTIES

Made Two Mile Run Last Night And Laid Nearly Three Thousand Feet of Hose to Save Dwelling.

By good generalship, rapid headwork, and some unusually fast moving the Janesville fire department was last night able to save from destruction the old Galbraith house on Ruger avenue, occupied by Mr. Wolf and family, although it was handicapped as perhaps never before. The house is two miles distant from the central fire station and over half a mile from the nearest hydrant.

Chief Klein and Fireman Charles Schmitz, riding in the Chief's auto, were the first to arrive, reaching the place about six minutes after the alarm was received, which was about 7:45 o'clock. By the time the police patrol arrived all the chemical on the Chief's car was used up. That on the patrol was then utilized, and then the smaller ones on the other apparatus as they arrived. Meanwhile other firemen were engaged in laying hose while some formed a bucket brigade.

Four wagon-loads of fire hose, 2700 feet in all, were strung out from the hydrant on Ringold street but this was not enough to bring the water to the fire. While three firemen were sent back to the station to get more, a small but powerful stream of water was brought to play upon the flames by connecting the end of the fire hose to the chemical tank on the patrol wagon and coupling the chemical hose from this with that on the Chief's automobile. The three firemen sent after more hose made the trip to the station and brought back 250 feet of fire hose in eight minutes' time, although the roads were very rough most of the way.

Nearly two hours' time was required to put out the fire, which had a very good start when the firemen arrived. The people occupying the house were not aware of it until their attention was called to it by neighbors who saw the flames in the front hall. The cause of the fire is not known but it seems to have started in an upper room and penetrated down through the ceiling and a partition. There were no stoves or chimneys in that part of the house from which a blaze might start. The room was badly gutted and charred by the flames but the fire did not penetrate through the roof. Considerable damage was also done by the axes used to get at the blaze. The loss is estimated at about $400.

The department was called out at about 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning to put out a fire in the barroom at the European Hotel. The fire was put out by the use of chemicals in about twenty minutes' time.

Damage to stock and building is estimated from $400 to $500, most of the damage being to the stock. About thirty boarders were routed out of bed in scant clothing and were obliged to withstand the cold outside for about half an hour. The cause of the fire is unknown but is believed to have started from a carelessly thrown cigar stub.

Since that announcement was made the viceroy who had been created Baron Hardinge on his appointment to office has been visiting various parts of the country and has been able to pay only flying visits to Delhi to inspect the preparations for the transfer of the government into the new imperial city.

Help! What Shall I Get HER For Christmas?

HELP! "WHAT SHALL I GET HER FOR CHRISTMAS?"
"I've gone through every 'doggone' shop in town. I'm tired out. And I'm weary from looking at things. There's nothing new! This great annual swap affair has me beaten to a frazzle."
"Every time I try to buy her a gift it's the same thing over again. The very thought of Christmas gives me fifty-seven varieties of gloom. The stores are packed. I never saw such a mob in all my life. This Christmas mania is worse than an epidemic."
"But I've always given her something, some way—something nice. She always knows I just what I need and like most of all. It's intuition. Every woman has it. They don't seem to mind shopping. She has been preparing for weeks and has a trunkful already."
"Women have the right idea; they certainly can buy gifts. She reads THE GAZETTE every night—goes through those advertisements in no time. She always finds the very thing for Harry. Just what mother has longed for, and the cutest little presents for those Darrow children."
"By George! That's the idea! Wonder I never thought of it before. If she can pick and choose all her gifts so satisfactorily in THE GAZETTE, so can I. I'll choose her gift from THE GAZETTE Christmas advertisements tonight, and then get it in no time tomorrow."

TO MAKE READY FOR PARCELS POST WHEN XMAS RUSH IS OVER

Preparations for Establishment of System in Janesville Will be Taken up When Christmas Business is Completed.

Preparations for the establishment of the parcels post system in Janesville will be commenced at the local postoffice as soon as the Christmas rush of business has been taken care of, according to Postmaster C. L. Valentine today. Just as present the postmaster and the force employed at the postoffice are working up to capacity overtime in order to handle the volume of mail that is pouring in to the office, and it was necessary yesterday to keep the full force at work, where ordinarily only a few employees are necessary to handle the Sunday mails. In every department at the postoffice, the employees are rushed to do the work they have to do in handling registered packages, money orders, general delivery mail, and the incoming and outgoing mail that has to be assorted.

Full equipment for the establishment of the parcels post system in Janesville has not been received as yet, although maps, guide books and other material containing information about the system have been received from the postoffice department at Washington. Later this week these instructions will be carefully gone over, and the employees of the postoffice who will have the handling of parcels post matter will be given their instructions. Just what equipment will be necessary is not as yet definitely known.

Under the parcels' post system Janesville will be the center of a "zone" with a radius of fifty miles, and of other zones at various distances. The second zone includes all territory in the United States within 150 miles away, the third 300 miles, the fourth 450 miles, the fifth 600 miles, the sixth 750 miles, the seventh 900 miles, the eighth 1,050 miles, the ninth 1,200 miles, the tenth 1,350 miles. The cost of sending packages depends upon the weight and the distance it is to be sent. Within the first zone, that is within fifty miles of Janesville, there are to be two rates, one for matter to be delivered in the city, and the other for matter to be delivered in the rural districts. Parcels over four ounces are charged at the rate of a pound, and parcels a few ounces over a pound, which is the maximum weight. Packages weighing less than four ounces will be sent at a rate of one cent an ounce everywhere, no matter what the distance is. Only parcels post-stamps may be used for sending fourth class mail, which includes practically all mail matter except letters, post cards, and printed matter.

Articles may be sent to persons living in the city at a rate of 5 cents for one pound, 6 cents for two pounds, and so on up to 15 cents for 11 pounds. This rate also applies to people living in a rural route who mail packages to other persons along the same route, or to persons in the city from which the route starts, or to persons on some other route starting from the same city.

A schedule of the rates for packages not to be delivered in the city or on the rural routes, but within one of the various zones, together with some of the important facts concerning the parcels post system are given as follows:

Articles may be sent to persons living in the city at a rate of 5 cents for one pound, 6 cents for two pounds, and so on up to 15 cents for 11 pounds. This rate also applies to people living in a rural route who mail packages to other persons along the same route, or to persons in the city from which the route starts, or to persons on some other route starting from the same city.

LAWMAKERS TO PASS ON A HOST OF BILLS

LEGISLATION NOW PROPOSED TO FURTHER PROGRESSIVE SCHEME COVERS WIDE RANGE.

PREDICT LONG SESSION

Legislators Show Little Interest in Session's Program But Will Have Vast Amount to Consider.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Dec. 23.—Individual members of the next Wisconsin legislature will demand less and the people of the state collectively will ask more progressive legislation than in any previous session. This is the nature deduction from a review of the activities of the legislative reference library, where bills for the coming session are being drafted.

"Never in the history of Wisconsin," said Dr. Charles McCarthy, chief of the reference library, "have legislators apparently shown so little interest in the session's program. It is not believed the session will be a short one. The unusual activity of organizations of the state in the interest of proposed legislation indicates it will be as long or longer than any other session in the state's history."

The measures now in preparation will touch practically every field of human activity. Undoubtedly the biggest feature will be bills for the protection of the workers.

Continued Progression.
Wisconsin may take a unique forward movement in democracy by providing for the recall of members of state commissions, either by the people or the legislature. Such a measure will at least be offered for passage.

The initiative, referendum and recall, a constitutional amendment, will come before the voters for approval a second time before being referred to the people. A radical amendment will be proposed looking to the naming of all present appointive officers in the state under the merit system.

Among bills to be introduced are the following:

Woman's Suffrage.—Following its defeat at the polls last month woman's suffrage will again come before the legislature.

Co-operative Rural Credit.—The farmers are demanding a system of rural credit which may allow them to bond their farms, a plan designed to facilitate methods by which farmers may borrow money.

State Aid To Highways.—The bill for state aid for highways will be introduced. An appropriation of $1,000,000 will be asked, in accordance with a recommendation of the state highway commission. Northern Wisconsin will demand the building of state roads through the state lands.

Waterpowers.—Waterpower legislation modeled closely after the Husting bill in the special session will be introduced.

LEMONS ARE THROWN AT STUDENT ACTORS

Investigation Will Follow Disgraceful Disturbance During Christmas Program at High School.
Some annoyance occurred at the high school last Friday during the afternoon when the production from Dickens was presented by the students of the English Literature class. It looked bad for the ones who accidentally threw the lemons at the performers when they were trying to do their best, and the actors were almost forced to give up their attempt to interest the student body. It is thought something will be done, and although the act was not thought to be serious at first, it has turned into much disturbance.

HALL & SAYLES

"The Reliable Jewelers."

MRS. WORRY.

BY C. A. VOIGHT.

Johnny Summers, welterweight champion of England, believes it pays to pray before and during his fight encounters. Just before his recent winning fight with Syd Burns in London he knelt in his corner, bowed his head reverently and made the sign of the cross. Then he sprang to his feet like a panther and almost tore his antagonist limb from limb. At the end of each round Summers turned down his left sock and touched a rosary that was wound around his ankle, and at the call of time to start each round he dropped on one knee and passed his right hand across his face. Summers almost turned Burns into mince meat and he sincerely believes that prayer brought about this happy result.

Jim Flynn says Al Falzer will whip Luther McCarty January 1 in Los Angeles. "I would have whipped McCarty if our fight hadn't been stopped in the sixteenth round," says Jim. "I set out to wear McCarty down, and was doing it. I was just getting ready to finish him when the fight was stopped. He's a big boob."

Manager Fred Clark of the Pittsburgh Pirates says that a bench manager can run a team much better than a player manager. "A manager who coaches when their entire field is before him," Clark explains, then no spot will be neglected.

The fans have often criticized managers who coached when their team was ahead and went to the bench when they were behind, and it does look as though the manager was losing heart, but a manager goes to the bench to give his whole attention to figuring out new schemes."

The year 1913 promises to be a real exciting one so far as international athletic go. The United States and England will clash in many branches of sport, the most prominent being polo, tennis, yachting, track and boxing. Uncle Sam's brawny athletes seem to have the edge on John Bull's, especially in the realm of boxing, track athletics and golf. One of the big 1913 events will be the Sir Thomas Lipton's umpteenth attempt to lift the American cup. He will send another Shamrock after the silverware which has found lodgings on this side of the water since 1851.

By refusing to make any sort of trade of players Clark Griffith reveals a pretty good brand of intelligence. Clark says that more teams are weakened than strengthened by exchange of players. Since he has been in charge of the Washington Senators Griffith has made but one trade—that of Street to New York for Alva Williams. Any additions to his team in the future will, in all probability, be for cash.

Carl Morris has owned up that he fought Bob Williams, his sparring partner, under the name of Keating, in Chattanooga. "But," insists this prize lion of the ring, "I didn't know I was to fight Williams until I reached Chattanooga, and when I learned Williams was to be my opponent I objected, but finally went on as the people who paid to see me box wouldn't be disappointed."

BASEBALL NOTES.

Forrest Gady, the crack backstop of the Boston Champions, joined the Elks at Kewanee, Ill., recently. Christy Matheson is spending the winter months playing checkers and writing baseball stories for the daily press.

For his second season's work in the big show, Pitcher Eppa Rixey, of the Philadelphia Nationals, demands a salary of five thousand dollars.

Bill Coughlin, formerly of the Detroit Tigers, and last season manager of the Allentown Tri-State League team, has purchased a hotel in Scranton, Pa.

Manager Rowland, of the Dubuque team in the Three-I League, has signed Earl Mattick, a brother of "Chick" Mattick, of the Chicago White Sox.

Hugh McBree is trying to sell his stock in the Jersey City club. Hugh was formerly secretary of the Boston Red Sox. He purchased an interest in the skaters last year.

Detroit is full of gloom at the present time, for President Navin has refused to give Ty Cobb an increase in salary, and Ty threatens to quit baseball if Mr. Navin doesn't come across.

Should Benny Meyer, secured from Toronto by the Brooklyn Superbas, stick to his determination to quit baseball, Charley Ebbets intends to grab Billy Zimmerman from the Newark team.

The name of the recently organized Northeastern League has been changed to the Maine State League. The circuit will include Portland, Lewiston, Bangor, Augusta, Bath and Biddeford.

The members of the Cubs have appointed E. Reulbach Cub representative to the Players' Protective Association, to succeed Johnny Evers, who resigned automatically when he became the manager of the team.

Cornelius J. Sullivan, the attorney, vice-president and director of the New York Giants, is the old Amherst and Harvard ball player. He was a member of Louis Frothingham's team in 1893, which won the series from Yale.

In his vaudeville act, Hugh Jennings sings a ballad entitled "That's How I Knew You." Hugh ought to sing the song to Cobb and Crawford. It would surely touch the hearts of the two star outfielders and cause them to sign Detroit contracts minus an increase in salary.

Lee Tannehill, who was released by the White Sox a short time before the close of last season, was refused a share in Cubs-Sox series by the Sox players, but President Comiskey saw that Tammy got a share. In speaking of the incident Comiskey said: "Some ball players are pretty tight, and I am sorry to say that some of the tightest belong to my team."

TRULY PROGRESSIVE.

Under the caption of "Truly Progressive," Ex-governor Hoard recently wrote the following editorial, which sizes up the situation correctly.

"Chas. H. Crownhart, president of the industrial commission, told the pea-canneries of the state at their convention in Milwaukee last week that it would make no difference with the commission in enforcing the law how much loss and friction it occasions in the provision against women working more than nine hours a day. Of course not—no matter how much the women want to take the increased pay for the rush season that will be paid for overtime. Neither they nor the canneries have any voice in the matter. Further, he told them that the fact of pea canneries leaving the state because of the fool provision of the law, would make no difference with the commission in driving straight ahead no matter who it hurt or how much damage is done. All this is truly progressive. The law was passed in the first place, not in answer to a call for the reformation of abuses, but because it suited the theoretical notions of socialists, McGovern and his very progressive bunch. Any interference with business freedom is justifiable and progressive, you know. It is really a good thing that these pea-raising farmers who have been whooping it up for La Follette, McGovern and other progressive humbugs, should get a taste of what such fool legislation means.

"The progressive politicians—always demagogues and nothing else—have been tickling the farmers with the idea that they were after the 'souless corporations'. But a lot of these pea-canning corporations, like the cheese factories and creameries, are built on farmers' money and the 'tickles' now feels like a stab. 'Twas ever thus from childhood's hour, Hurrah! for progressivism and all its meddlesomeness and interference with personal and industrial liberty. The voter will not take anyone's word for it. We hope he will get it good and strong till the stab gets down through his thick hide."

A STEP THAT EVERY PARENT CAN TAKE.

"The schools are now closed for the Christmas holidays. There would be a tremendous jolt felt by the whole futile system, if, before the schools open again after the holidays, each father (or mother) would convince himself of the wisdom of having his child's lessons and with school hours, in other words that there should be no books brought home; no lessons studied in the evenings. Of the physical and mental folly of evening study by a child every parent can easily satisfy himself. Then, having satisfied himself on this point, let him write a simple note to the principal of his child's school, or to the president of the Board of Education, saying that he will permit no home study, and that all lessons given the child to do at home will be brought back the next morning untouched. A parent so acting is entirely within his rights as the supporter of the schools; he is acting for the wisest physical and mental interests of his child; and where his example is multiplied by a score, or a hundred, it will compel an entire readjustment of the studies so as to bring them within the school hours, with the result that it would be a question of the survival of the fittest, the elimination of the useless and the introduction of sane methods that would teach a child how to study rather than ask him painfully to dig out a lesson, learn it and repeat it like a parrot. There are further steps, but this is the first. In other words the parent's absolute refusal to let his child study in the evening can be made the most effective entering wedge for a readjustment of a magnificent institution gone lamentably wrong."

The Ladies' Home Journal is conducting a campaign of school reform, in behalf of the child, and the January number, just published, contains the above suggestive paragraph to parents. The journal has made an exhaustive study of conditions and is thoroughly convinced that the health of child life is being injured by the methods employed. A plea is made for a more practical course of study in the grades and high school, and also for the elimination of all study out of school hours, and the parents are urged to assume authority. The work is along right lines, and should be encouraged.

WHAT A BLIND MAN DOES.

The Associated Press has long been noted for the excellence of its service and the ability of its correspondents and operators. Among the latter is a blind man by the name of Smith. The following sketch is of interest because it shows what can be accomplished by a man who is badly handicapped.

"The work of Charles E. Smith, night operator for The Associated Press at Colorado Springs, Colo., probably is without parallel in the operating field.

"While working for a commercial company, which service he entered when but thirteen years of age, he lost the sight of one eye, and while working for a brokerage firm in Denver in 1905, became totally blind. After a few months' absence from duty, he returned to the brokerage firm and successfully copied the New York stock service with a pencil, using a recorder, such as is used in mercantile establishments for making out sales tickets, as a guide.

"Mr. Smith left the service of the brokerage firm in 1910 and sent a press report out of Denver, Saturday nights, his wife reading the copy for him. He asked permission to practice in the Denver office of The Associated Press, mastered the 'touch' system, as well as the code, and was used as vacation relief operator at Colorado Springs in 1910. On November 12, 1911, he was given a permanent position at Leadville, Colo., from which point he was transferred to Colorado Springs on April 17, 1912.

"The telegraph editor speaks very highly of Mr. Smith's work, his copy being very 'clean,' not only on straight matter, but box scores and tabulation work as well.

"Mrs. Smith accompanies her husband to work, remains with him and reads any copy that is necessary for Mr. Smith to send.

"Mr. Smith gives all the credit to his wife, who has been his 'eyes' for seven years."

It is not surprising that some of the property owners on Washington street have a grievance. The recent street improvement has imposed a heavy burden, without adding much to the selling value of their property. This is their misfortune, but the city is in no way responsible. The streets are public highways. They belong to the people, and the interests of the city demand that they be kept in good condition. No way has yet been found to transfer the burden of street improvements to the city, and until this is done, the individual will be compelled to bear it. If the city had been bonded twenty years ago, and money provided to brick pave the principal streets to the city limits, it would have been a good investment. Until something of this kind is done the old order will continue, and there will be more or less complaint.

The report is current that the only hope of the recall performers is to defeat Commissioner Roy Cummings and put in his place a man that they can control. This is a compliment to Mr. Cummings, and should secure him the support of all law respecting citizens. It might be well to remember that the mayor and both commissioners voluntarily signed and published a statement defining their position and intentions, the day after the recall was filed. This is a matter of record, and commits them to the enforcement of the law. It is up to the people now to back them to a man. The election of both commissioners is as important as the election of the mayor, and the vote on the three men should be a unit.

It is possible that if the city owned the water works, that the recall brothers might take more kindly to the fluid, but it is one thing to vote to buy the plant, and another thing to find the money to pay for it. That's the proposition which is just now troubling the city authorities, and a change of administration would in no way affect the situation. The water works is not an issue, and any attempt to drag in will be regarded as a burlesque. Water is good to drink for people who like it, and the city will manage to worry along as it is, until some way is discovered to secure a proprietary interest, and then there will be a general scramble for the water wagon.

The suggestion has been made that there are apparently irregularities enough about the recall petitions to invalidate action, should complaint be made. This will probably not be done, as the feeling prevails that the question might as well be settled, first as last. If popular sentiment demands a wide open town, the people ought to know it. Of if the law and order sentiment is in the ascendency then the element with a grievance ought to know it. Delay, for any cause, would simply postpone action. The microbe infests our body politic, and the sooner we get it out of our system the better. Don't forget that the one and only issue is law or lawlessness.

A careful survey of the names signed to the recall petition, fails to disclose the name of the candidate for mayor, or the name of one of the candidates for a commissioner. Something is said about another list, but the published list is the only one that the public knows anything about. That speaks for itself and comment is unnecessary.

WILL IT BE TAFT AND WITCHER? UTAH WOMAN CANDIDATE FOR VICE PRESIDENT

Mrs. Margaret Zane Witcher, of Salt Lake City, Utah, may be the first woman in the United States to receive the votes of a great party for the office of vice president. Mrs. Witcher is one of Utah's four Republican electors and is a candidate for the vice presidency. She expects to receive the votes of the Utah delegation, which constitutes one half the Republican strength in the electoral college. The other half comes from Vermont. The Green Mountain state electors have been requested to vote for Mrs. Witcher and make it unanimous, but they have not yet announced their position.

CHICAGO POLICE INSTITUTE NATIONWIDE SEARCH FOR ALLEGED MURDERER OF WOMAN

Mrs. Emma Kraft and John Koetters.

Chicago police have instituted a nationwide search for John Koetters, whom they suspect is responsible for the murder and robbery of Mrs. Emma Kraft in Chicago on the night of November 12. Koetters took Mrs. Kraft to the Saratoga hotel at about 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Her dead body was found there nine hours later. She had been robbed of $4,000 and a small fortune in jewels. Koetters disappeared from sight on the same day, and no trace of his whereabouts has since been found although the police of every city in the country are looking for him.

A correspondent of the Literary Digest avers that the famous crack in the Liberty Bell is not a crack, but only the facsimile of a crack. His assertion is that the original bell was indeed cracked, but that the present bell is a recast from a model of the old one, with the crack filled up, though still showing the lines of the defect.

POLICE MAKE CATCH OF TWO HOLD-UP MEN WANTED IN HARTLAND

John Rosso and John Delias Captured in This City Within Four Hours After Committing Crime.

Within less than four hours after they had held up two Italian railway laborers at Hartland, and robbed one of them of $150, and in less than an hour after the police received a telegram giving their description, John Rosso and John Delias, also, Italians, were placed under arrest in this city early this morning by Patrolmen Dorn, Morrissey and Smith.

The men arrived in Janesville on the 12:45 train from Harvard to which place they had walked from Hartland, but the message to the police did not arrive until later. They at once began a search for men answering the description given and found them within a short time. Rosso and Delias would not admit having anything to do with the robbery to the police but made a confession this morning to the sheriff and deputy sheriff from Woodstock who came up on the Chicago paper train. They were taken to Woodstock on the train leaving here about eight o'clock.

According to the confession made to the officers from Woodstock, Rosso and Delias came to the bunk car at Hartland about 10:30 o'clock last night with the avowed intention to rob its occupants. One of the two had been working a piece of land at Woodstock, was acquainted in the vicinity and knew that one of the Italians in the car had considerable money. His accomplice had just come out from Chicago.

On reaching the car they found the doors closed and locked and to gain entrance resorted to force. They awakened the occupants and told them that they had discovered a broken rail which must be attended to at once. The ruse worked and the car door was no sooner opened when the two hold-up men stepped in and grappled with the two men inside.

The Italians robbed stated that one of the thugs covered them with a revolver while the other made a search but this was denied by Rosso and Delias. Money was found on only one of the lodgers. He had $150 secreted in his underclothing and the robber in cutting it out slashed his victims.

RUNAWAY HORSE IS STILL UNRECOVERED

Valuable Black Gelding Which Broke Away From Fred Hackbarth Saturday Evening Still at Large.

Efforts to locate Mr. Hackbarth's valuable black gelding, belonging to Fred Hackbarth of Milton, who broke away from him in a runaway accident on Milwaukee road at eight-thirty Saturday evening, had been unsuccessful up to a late hour this afternoon. The accident occurred three and one-half miles east of this city. The horse took flight at some unaccountable cause and in a sudden turn tipped over the buggy and broke away. Mr. Hackbarth, who was unhurt, made haste to follow but could only discover that the animal had run on turning to the north. He telephoned his father, Charles Hackbarth, who came to meet him and together they searched the neighborhood Saturday evening. The horse failed to return home Sunday or today and all inquiries have thus far been unavailing.

The horse was a valuable animal and very high spirited. He was five years old and weighed around 1,100 pounds. His four feet were marked white. It is not thought that he could become entangled in the harness as he had rid himself of everything but the bridle and back-pad. Mr. Hackbarth was in Janesville today and made inquiries of the police. Any person recovering the horse can reach Mr. Hackbarth by phone at Milton 463 x.

The next regular meeting of the W. H. Sargent W. R. C. No. 21, will be held in their hall Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 24.

ALSBERG NAMED AS WILEY'S SUCCESSOR

Dr. C. L. Alsberg.

Dr. C. L. Alsberg, who has just been appointed chief of the bureau of chemistry in the agricultural department at Washington to succeed Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, has acquired an international reputation as an authority on the biological phases of chemistry. He has been chairman of the new biochemical section of the American Chemical Society—the largest and most influential scientific society in America—since its formation. He has done much valuable work in the agricultural department since he entered it four years ago.

His post of chief of the bureau of chemistry has never been considered a political appointment and it is not likely that Dr. Alsberg will be removed when the Wilson administration comes in.

JANUARY WILL OPEN WITH BITTER STORM

Several Cold Waves of Some Severity Are Predicted Within Next Two Weeks by Foster Bureau.

Copyright 1912 by W. T. Foster.
Last bulletin gave forecast of disturbance to cross continent Dec. 23 to 27, warm wave 22 to 25, cool wave 25 to 29. The cold wave preceding this disturbance will bring temperatures below the usual average of low temperatures and the warm wave will be moderately above the average. Some rains and snows are expected but less than usually accompany such winter storms.

We are now able to make fairly good forecasts, in a general outline for the continent, giving—not in detail but in a general way—the location of excessive and deficient rainfall, temperatures and severe storms. In October we published that precipitation for this continent would be deficient as an average of the five months, beginning with November, that temperatures would be above the average, that in northern sections of South America, on the Caribbean Sea and Gulf of Mexico rainfall would be in excess, while in southern South America rainfall would be deficient. Also that the severe storms would occur in South America and the East Indies.

We did not mention our blizzard but they may always be expected when a hurricane enters the Caribbean Sea. That general forecast has proven, so far, remarkably correct. It is believed that these general forecasts, added to our local monthly and local daily forecasts will prove both interesting and valuable.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about Dec. 26, cross Pacific slope by close of 27, great central valleys 28 to 30, eastern sections 31. Warm waves will cross Pacific slope about Dec. 26, great central valleys 28, eastern sections 33. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about Dec. 29, great central valleys 31, eastern sections Jan. 2.

This disturbance will be of greater than usual force, temperatures will average lower than usual. It will be preceded by high temperatures and followed by a cold wave that may amount to a blizzard in some parts of northern sections. Precipitation will occur over large parts of the continent but not in great quantity. Rains of the winter are expected to be greater in the southern than in the northern states and Canada. Severe storms are expected to be in the nature of cold waves and blizzards but average temperature not usually low. Deep snows will be few and far between.

First disturbance of January will reach Pacific coast about Dec. 31, cross Pacific slope by close of Jan. 1, great central valleys Jan. 2 to 4, eastern sections 5. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about Dec. 31, great central valleys Jan. 2, eastern sections 4. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about Jan. 3, great central valleys 5, eastern sections 7. This will be a severe storm. Temperatures preceding it will not go to high degrees but the cold waves preceding and following will go to low levels. These cold waves will cause blizzards in some of the blizzard sections and they may reach as far south as Texas.

These cold waves will probably cause the principal precipitation, including heaviest snows, of the winter. During Jan. the planet Venus will shine brightly in the west soon after sunset. It has much to do with our weather, particularly with cold waves, blizzards and frosts. The government scientists use Venus in their calculations of the tides and it is strange that some professor of our weather bureau has not included that planet in his calculations of our weather. Our astronomer is surely more easily affected than is the heavy salt waters of the Ocean.

His Job.
"What are the principal activities of the official position our friend occupies?" "Those involved in holding on to it," replied Senator Sorghum.—Washington Star.

QUIET, CULTURED, PURPOSEFUL—THESE TERMS DESCRIBE WILSON'S DAUGHTERS.

Quiet, cultured, purposeful—these terms describe the three Wilson girls who on March 4th next will enter the white house. Jessie, the youngest daughter, 22, is a pretty girl with blond hair, her smiling face and look of complete understanding and friendliness making it easy to see why the mill girls of Philadelphia, where she has been engaged in social settlement work, adore her and why they are rather sorry that Wilson has been elected president.
Margaret, 20, is tall and looks like her father, whose voice she has inherited.
Eleanor, 24, is an artist, and has been studying at the Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia.
None of the girls cares for the gay life of society. "I am sure that we will be able to keep our end at Washington and play the social game, but our hearts will not be in it," says their mother.

When Wrinkles Come.
The first wrinkle of age comes on the side of the cheek just in front of the ear and its possessor is, as a rule, the last person to notice it. Just behind the ear there is usually a falling off of the roundness of the neck, and the hair becomes thin, leaving a bald look on the woman over 40 if she is not careful to remedy these important blemishes. Massage will do more for these growing imperfections than almost any other facial defect.

An Englishman operating a butterfly farm is said to sell to museum and collectors upward of 50,000 specimens yearly. He obtains as high as $50 for exceptionally fine ones, and his net income is said to be fully $2,500.

HER CHRISTMAS GIFT

September 17.
US SAIL tomorrow.
 I am devotedly thankful to dad for insisting that mother take me away for a while. Perhaps we will remain a year. I hope it may be ten. I hate America, loathe New York, and want to live the rest of my life in Europe—Asia—Africa—anywhere, as far away from Riverside as possible. Mother says I'm a silly little lovesick girl; but dad thinks I need a change.

I'm not silly—and I'm not lovesick. Carl has behaved in a most ungentlemanly way.

Just because I motored to Lakewood with Sam Perkins and his sister is no reason why he should get cross and take that actress-looking person with him everywhere he goes.

Sam's sister says she is a Frenchwoman. I always did hate French, and I'm glad I refused Carl to meet her, glad I snubbed Carl and glad I was out when he called.

Two long, miserable weeks without seeing Carl—and tomorrow we sail. Perhaps I won't see him for months—maybe never again. I wonder if I care.

October 20.
 More than a month has passed since I have written in my little diary. I wouldn't write now, only this morning a letter came from Carl, and I just have to record it.

Carl says he is lonely; he misses me, and he cannot understand why I ran away to Europe so suddenly.

The letter is full of reproaches for my treatment of him, when all the time it was his meanness to me that made me so ill, so that I had to get away from everybody.

He does not mention one word about that horrid French creature.

I shall not write. Well—perhaps I will.

November 24.

At first I hated Paris. London was nice, Vienna stupid, but Paris—impossible, until last Sunday, when we met Mrs. Harmon.

Isn't it strange what a change one day, one hour, can make in a girl's life?

Mr. and Mrs. Field, friends of mother's, gave a dinner for us. Mrs.

Harmon was one of the guests. She looks much better in the evening gown than in her street suits; not nearly so frowsy, and the rouge on her cheeks doesn't show at night. I was appalled when mother introduced me to her, to recognize Carl's French friend. She is his cousin, but she has lived in Paris since she was a little girl.

We had a lovely talk. She told me all about her recent visit to America and how good Carl had been in taking her about.

I like her now that I know her.

She says Carl was perfectly miserable over a girl he was in love with, who had gone abroad for the winter. She did not know the girl's name. I blushed furiously when she spoke of it.

That was Sunday. We have seen Mrs. Harmon several times since then.

I made mother promise to take me home. She cabled dad, and said she would be thankful to get back to plain home cooking and her own bathroom. Mother is a dear, and so funny.

December 25.

What a happy, happy Christmas day it has been!

The very best I have ever known. Once I said I hated America—New York—but I don't.

I love New York and America, Riverside, home, mother, dad and Carl. Oh, I love Carl best of all!

He has been so sweet, so dear and kind, since we came home two weeks ago. He met us at the pier. I was never so glad to see anybody in my life as I was to see dear old Carl. Dad was there, too.

My Christmas gifts are lovely. Best of all is Carl's love and the ring he gave me as a token of his deep, unending love. I think it was sweet of him to give me such a wonderful diamond, besides the candy and books and flowers. It flashes fire as I turn my hand in the light. Daddy says I'm too young to marry, but I shall coax him to let me marry Carl in June. I'm the happiest girl in the world tonight, and Carl is the happiest man. He has told me so himself. I wish everybody in the world were as happy as we this Christmas night.

At The Theatre

CHAMELEONS TONGUE IN ACTION
LYMAN H. HOWE'S TRAVEL FESTIVAL

An amazing fact, heretofore unknown even to biologists, was recently discovered in a most unexpected way by means of animated photography. It discloses the actual speed of the chameleon's tongue in "striking" out for its prey and bringing back the "dinner" in this instance, a fly. The whole incident takes place like a flash of lightning, and heretofore the exact time required could never be determined. So-called "still" photography could never disclose it because it cannot depict movement, yet in this case the movement is even more remarkable than the length of the tongue. The disco-ry was made accidentally during a novel nature study of the chameleon to be reproduced by Lyman H. Howe at three o'clock. In order to enable the human eye to see just what takes place, the subject was highly magnified, and a fly was placed within "reach" of the chameleon. The motion pictures were then taken at the rate of sixteen per second, and three particular frames show the exact position of the tongue for each one sixteenth of a second. These three positions are shown in the above illustration. The first shows the tongue (which is twice the length of the chameleon's body) shooting out for the unsuspecting fly. The second shows just what took place when, with incredible swiftness, the tongue enveloped the fly. The third shows the tongue returning with the fly in an infinitesimal fraction of a second. The pictures prove conclusively what could not be substantiated in any other way and constitute a "striking" illustration of the scientific value of animated pictures. An infinite variety of scenes of Paris and its environs, including the historic Palace of Versailles with its wonderful fountains and a trip along the picturesque rivers of France—all presented in the myriad hues and tints of nature; the burial of the Maine; whaling; a thrilling race between a hydroplane and a fleet of the swiftest motor boats, including the 800 horse power Ursula, and the bee industry, are only a few of the many other big features to be presented.

ON THE BOUNDING DEEP.

There is no more delightful play-ground in the world than a steamer's deck. Aboard the great ocean liners special provision is made for entertaining the children. Several of the steamers have special cabins set aside for the young passengers. These are supplied with furniture, selected with intelligent sympathy, and with a profusion of games to suit every taste. A special steward will be found in charge, who devotes his or her time to making the cruise pleasant for all passengers. The happy-looking group of children in the photograph were taken aboard the S. S. Victoria Luise on one of her regular cruises to the West Indies. The broad decks of the great modern liners afford ample room for exercises and games. No passengers on the modern liners are served more carefully than these young passengers.

SPUR OF THE MOMENT

From the Hickeyville Clarion.

"Pop" Wilson bought a new set of cultivator teeth three weeks ago last Wednesday. The Clarion hopes he won't swaller these like he did his own set at the grange picnic last August while trying to get away with a quarter section of Grandma Jordan's mince pie.

There was to be a magic lantern show at the opny house last night, but the Ladies' Aid got next, and put the lid on. There is such a thing as carrying reform too far. When a thing like the checker game in the rear of a drug store is allowed to go on without interference, it seems like straining at a camel and swallowing a gnat to stop a magic lantern show.

No more wood will be received on subscription. Along with Hubbard squash and prize pumpkins it is on the taboored list. What the Clarion needs now is a little of the stuff that talks. The amount we have now can't even whisper as loud as a bull-frog with the tonsillitis in a ten below zero climate. Christmas is drawing nigh and we have got to have enough of the tainted stuff to buy a pair of cotton batting whiskers and rent a string of sleighbells. If only a few would call in and settle it would help some. Come on, boys. Let us show what Hickeyville can do.

A one-armed man selling lead pencils was in our midst Wednesday last. This is getting to be quite a metropolitan place. Enos Hand Tuerd at West Hickeyville. A wood-pecker has got the hardest face of any bird I ever see. Calling cards printed at the Clarion office.

There was quite a lot of excitement in this man's town last Wednesday. A slicker from the city passed a Canadian quarter on the wine clerk at the Golden Nugget. Old Man Purdy lost a large knot out of his wooden leg the other day and he is now hiring out for a hitching post. He stands in front of Tibbitt's grocery store and farmers coming into town hitch their horses through the knot in Purdy's leg. Hank Tumms has the dyspepsia at this writing. Had fresh pork for dinner Sunday and wasn't use to it.

Uncle Ezra Harkins has a new job as janitor of the town hall. Ezra has been in politics for a long time and has earned this place.

Good Resolutions Come Wrong. Christmas time is comin' round. Coming with a lean and bound. Haven't got much time to save. For those presents our folks crave.

Member what I said last year. When the season of good cheer Had reduced my good old purse To a frazzlette or worse? Said I would begin in June. Thought it wouldn't be too soon To begin to save my dough. For my gifts, this year you know Somehow I forgot my pledge. Now we are upon the edge. Of another glad some time. When the merry Christmas chime Makes us count our cash for fair. Soon hear sleighbells in the air. Somehow I don't like that sound—Christmas time is comin' round.

Christmas time is comin' round. Snow will soon be on the ground. Let's see, what was I to do? Wasn't going to smoke or chew. Go to shows or spend a cent. For any sort of foolishment. Had it all planned what I would Save up thus by bein' good. Knew what all my folks would get From this Santa Claus, you bet. Knew what I'd give Cousin Bill And Brother Bob and Sister Lil, Uncle Hank and Ma and Dad. Sounded splendid, for I had Pizzered on the finest things. That the glad some season brings. But, somehow, the old long greens Never got within my jeans. Fessin' grouchy, I'll be bound—Christmas is comin' round.

Musings of a Pessimist. A lot of windchillers get gabby about the people's rights when they don't know the people's rights from their lefts. A lot of people with nerve get by while a lot of others with ability don't. About the only valid excuse for wearing long flowing whiskers is that it does away with the necessity of buying neckties. Nobody has got a better opinion of himself than a man who has accumulated $25,000 in a small town. There is such a thing as being too close to nature. There are times when some of it should be washed off.

Wail of the Pessimist. "Yes, I consider my life a failure." "O Henry, how sad! Why should you say that?" "I spend all my time making money enough to buy food and clothes, and the food disagrees with me, and my clothes don't fit."

In a Glass House. Tom—"Doesn't your girl's father call you down for staying so late?" Jack—"Well, no. You see, I generally meet him at the gate coming home from the club."

ORFORDVILLE UPILS GIVE ENTERTAINMENT

Unusual Talent Displayed in Presentation of Play on Friday Evening.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Orfordville, Dec. 23.—The closing of the village school for a two weeks' vacation, was marked by a play given at the opera house, Friday evening. "The Hair of Little Vernon," a five-act comedy drama was presented by the pupils of the grammar room, under the direction and instruction of Prof. Earl Harrop, assisted by Mrs. Harrop. The curtain rose promptly at eight o'clock, and throughout the evening the play moved without a hitch. The children were letter-perfect and entered fully into the spirit of the play, while all of the young actors deserve praise and each part contributed to the success of the whole. Two or three need special mention. Alfred Kytle, a lad of twelve, in the character of Lord Fairfax and obliged to be on the stage most of the time, carried his part and delivered his lines with grace and polish. Raymond Gage, as George Washington, the "Hair" and Kenneth Wells, as a negro butler, both looked and acted their roles admirably.

Between acts the audience was favored with music, each number of which was charmingly rendered. The entire affair was an innovation for our school and proved an immense success. Aside from other considerations, the drill the children receive in rehearsals is an advantage to them in many ways. Prof. Harrop is receiving many commendatory words for the results achieved.

The small admittance fee charged goes to the fund with which the children hope to purchase a piano for their room. S. O. Onsgard and O. A. Peterson spent Saturday in Janesville. Miss Hamilton, a former teacher here, stopped over last evening on her way home to Brodhead, from Whitewater, to see the school play. Mrs. Earl Harrop entertained her brother and sister, Friday. Orin Rime and wife, went to Janesville Saturday. They will spend Christmas week in Edgerton.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Janesville Gazette: Now that it has been decided that we are to have a recall, I would like to express my opinion on it. In the first place, for years Janesville has been known as the toughest town of its size for miles around. A person almost had to be ashamed to tell outsiders that he lived in Janesville. And now in the last three or four months Janesville has become a fit place to live, and some of the residents became so used to an open town that they find it very hard to become accustomed to live in a decent town. One manufacturer says that being that the saloons are closed on Sunday that he lost one of his best mechanics. Now who ever heard of a man that could not get along over Sunday without "booze" being a first class mechanic; it is impossible. Now Janesville has been an open town for years and how has it helped the town? Beloit is a law-abiding town and we will compare the two. Janesville has increased in population from 1900 to 1910, 709 inhabitants or 5.4 percent. Beloit, a law abiding town, has increased 4689 inhabitants or 44.9 percent. If having the "lid" on hurts a town so much why is it that Beloit is forging ahead? 9 to our 1? And furthermore the supporters of the "recall" claim that if we keep the lid on here there will be people leaving town. "I presume boozers." On the other hand if they open the saloons on Sunday there will be decent law-abiding citizens leaving town. Now Mr. Voter which would you prefer to have the town retain booze fighters, or sober, law-abiding citizens? I take a drink occasionally myself, but I can get along without it for one day, and if the recall element should win out, and make an open town out of Janesville all of the crooks in the country would make Janesville their headquarters, and Janesville would not be a fit place or safe place to live. If the recall element win out I shall leave town as I do not think it will be a fit place or safe place for my family to live. If this town wasn't an open town four months ago it is doubtful if Harry Berger and Ed Meyer would be behind the bars now. So in conclusion I will say that if Mayor Fathers, and Commissioners Cummings and Millimore are retired, they will be retired for doing right and not wrong. Now you voters get together and re-elect Fathers, Cummings and Millimore, the men that have been working for you and my best interests and if they are re-elected "Watch Janesville Grow." A RESIDENT.

MOON SWINGS NEAR TO EARTH TONIGHT

Moon And Earth Nearest Together in Their Orbits Tonight, And Full Moon Will Be Visible.

Gazers at the pale and inconstant moon have in store an opportunity to see the full-orbed visage of that familiar planet tonight under circumstances most unusual and, unless all signs fail, in a brightness far surpassing the ordinary.

Four causes will conspire to produce the phenomenon. In the first place the planet will be at its nearest approach to the earth, and at the same time nearest the sun, a combination that does not frequently occur. Then, too, the moon is high in the sky, giving fine opportunity for observation and the snow on the ground will add to the visual possibilities.

Another interesting but not unusual occurrence at this season is the happening of the shortest day in the year. It occurred this year on December 22—and marks the beginning of winter. It is the day upon which, to us the sun reaches the southernmost point and starts upon its return. The exact hour of this happening was at 10 p. m. Saturday night, which made Sunday the shortest day, when the sun rises at 7:39 and sets at 4:19.

An interesting fact in this connection is that ever since December 14, the sun has been setting a little later each evening and Sunday it went down full two minutes later than a week ago. All during the week, however, the great orb has continued to rise later and will not change its habit in this regard for some days to come.

Genuine Belgian Charity.

Around a hut where, according to tradition, a young Irish princess was murdered, grew up the present town of Gheel, in Belgium, which became known as "the colony of the crazed." At first a temple in memory of the princess was erected and later it became a refuge for the "sick in mind." The remarkable thing about this Belgian town is that the residents accept patients in their own homes so that they may enjoy the beneficial effects of domestic and social intercourse.

LAUGHLIN DECLARES RECALL IS EFFORT TO DESTROY VIRTUE

PRESBYTERIAN PASTOR ANALYZES SITUATION IN ETHNIC ADDRESS LAST EVENING.

LAW AND ORDER ISSUE

Fight Stands Between Forces Who Favor Enforcement of Law and Those Who Prefer Immorality and Vice.

Rev. J. W. Laughlin denounced the recall movement as an effort on the part of disappointed politicians and sore-headed liquor dealers to destroy virtue and morality in the interest of vice and in the interest of the saloon.

Dr. Laughlin took as his topic "Undecorated in the Recall Movement," and talked with emphasis and feeling. He defended his position as a minister discussing current issues on the ground that present day religion includes all social, political and intellectual problems which concern the interests of humanity.

Among other things Dr. Laughlin said: "There are questions which arise in the life of a city that do not directly concern the pulpit. There are questions of policy, of finance, of street improvement, of the ownership of public utilities on which the pulpit may not be expected to speak. But on all moral questions, and especially such as is now before the people it is incumbent upon the pulpit to speak and to speak in no uncertain manner. Personally I should feel that I had been untrue to a trust—a sacred trust—a trust bestowed upon me by virtue of my relation to the motherhood and to the childhood of the city if I did not speak with all the power of my soul upon the question now before us.

"Sometimes in the discussion of public policies the real meaning of the problem lies upon the surface and you can see it without any very great mental acumen. At other times you have to look below the surface to discover the real animus of the question. Unfortunately such is the case in the present discussion. Here we are asked to consider one thing when we are really to consider another, from the fact that the other is not of sufficient respectability to bear the light of publicity. It is the subtlety, it is the attempt at concealment, the underground, under-world life to which the under-currents in this discussion run.

"It may not be out of place to consider the political situation as it was known under the former city council. One needs only to think for a moment to remember the miserable bickering and petty squabbles which went on at the city hall during the last administration. The whole city was thoroughly disgusted.

"It was during this administration, and the gentleman who now aspires to become mayor was mayor at the time, that the city affairs drifted into their most unhappy condition. It was that administration which sowed the seed for whatever corrupt harvest we have lately reaped. Let us not forget that in order to relieve the city of the incubus it was then carrying on of which it had grown so weary, the citizens determined to change the form of government. This was thought to be a method of obtaining relief without bringing any unnecessary embarrassment to the then incumbents since they were citizens and had to be considered as such.

The election was called and by an overwhelming vote it was decided to adopt the commission form of government. This is a change in the form of governing municipalities which is proving a success everywhere it is being tried. In dozens of cities both great and small, in the east and west, in the north and south it has been adopted and in not one has there been a disposition to return to the old form of government. But it requires time to adjust things to a new method and wherever tried the new officers have been given sufficient time to make good.

"Among the first things to be done when the new officers began their work in our city was to rehabilitate the law. Law enforcement was a dead letter under the former administration. The saloons were replete under the demand that they conform to the laws governing saloons and they did not conform. Gambling dens were many, gambling devices were seen everywhere; houses of prostitution were unnumbered. You know too well how two boys went down under the awful light of a wide open town. It was not a sudden development. It was gradual and the natural result of permitting minors to enter saloons, of having gambling dens and other unrestrained saloon accessories.

"When the present commissioners began to enforce the law by revoking the licenses of two saloon keepers, by removing gambling and gambling devices from places of business and by eliminating houses of prostitution the men whose business was interfered with rebelled and undertook to remove from office the men whose sworn duty it is to enforce the law. Think of it!

"A meeting has been called, men have been named and an election is soon to be held for the sole purpose of placing in power officials who pledge their constituents that they will not enforce the law, they will not disturb gambling dens or molest houses of prostitution.

"Listen merchants of Janesville! Listen farmers of Rock county! One set of men says to the voters, 'We will enforce the law,' the other says, 'We will not.' One set says, 'We will prohibit gambling and remove all gambling devices,' the other says, 'We will not.' One set of men says, 'We will do away with all houses of prostitution,' and the other says, 'We will not.'

"What an appeal this issue makes to the citizens of Rock county! One class of men says, 'We will make this city a safe place for your boys and girls. When they come to town on Saturdays we will protect them from the vicious man and from the scarlet woman.' The other class says, 'We will not.'

"One class says, 'We will try to make Janesville a safe city for decent people to live in.' The other says, 'We will open the town to all kinds of sporting people; we will make vice attractive. The lead woman shall walk the streets with the gambler and sport, and the boys and girls of Rock county will find that the path of virtue is less and less attractive and the path of vice is more and more alluring.'

"There are men who will say that this is an exaggerated statement. They will tell you that I have misread the mark and that my zeal is not wisely manifested. But I challenge any one to disprove my statements. I am amazed to know that men can be found who are so indifferent to the moral and social life of the city as to give countenance to this movement. Let the people of the city and county mark well the merchant who pretends a town without law to one with law. Let them remember well the man who wishes to make money at the expense of virtue and honor.

I am amazed that three men could be found that would lead such a ticket. I fully understand the position, however, which these men assume. They will tell you that I am not a good politician—that I am an enthusiast—a preacher, and therefore must not be taken seriously. But I know that every gambler in the city is on their side; I know every saloon keeper in the city is on their side; I know that every prostitute in the city is on their side, and I challenge the men at the head of the ticket to line up the other supporters in front of the city hall and see if the judge of the police court is not more familiar with them than any other man in the city.

The adherents to the cause would determine the issues if nothing else did. And no one should allow himself to be deluded into the thought that there is any other question before us but the question of law or no law.

There are those who will tell you that this recall movement is based on a dissatisfaction with the commissioners with reference to the public ownership of the water works. They will tell you that it is a question of the management of public utilities, of street improvement, that the undercurrent runs back to the appointed politician to a sort of saloon keeper, to a man who is restless under the necessity of obeying the law. You cannot avoid the issue, gentlemen, you have identified yourselves with that side of life and with that company you trail. When you throw a stone at a dog he only howls when he is hit.

More than that gentlemen, more than that. The institutions you fear or exist by new and fresh recruits. They will die without boys and girls. You ask for the sons and daughters of Rock county farmers to keep these institutions alive. Was there ever such a preposterous proposition presented by one neighbor to another? Verily death is never satisfied and hell is always agape! Give us your sons and your daughters for our saloons and for our brothels. Good heavens! Did ever a set of men occupy an unfavorable position? Has neighborly instinct perished? Has sympathy and compassion clean gone from the hearts of the men who could rule or ruin, and to whom rule means ruin?"

Dr. Laughlin's text was Acts 27: 21. "Paul said to the centurion and to the soldiers, except these abide with the ship, ye cannot be saved. Here is found the origin of the well known motto, 'Stick by the ship,' which the speaker contended was peculiarly fitted to the present situation.

Now You Can Get Beer Without That "SKUNKY" Taste!

All you have to do is to ask for Schlitz in Brown Bottles.

Sunlight grows hops, but spoils the beer.

"Beer acted upon by light soon takes up the very disagreeable, so-called 'light taste,' and also a repulsive, skunk-like odor," says no less an authority than the Wahl-Henius Institute of Fermentology, the scientific authorities on the subject. "Beer so affected," they say, "is offensive to the palate of most consumers."

Light starts decay even in pure beer. Dark glass gives the best protection against light. The Brown Bottle protects Schlitz purity from the brewery to your glass.

Why don't you, too, drink Schlitz? More and more people every year are demanding it.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"HAME."

"EAST or West, home is best." A woman who had been calling on several of her friends came back into her own home just at dusk, lighted the light, sank into her own particular easy chair, and, gazing about the room with evident satisfaction, said to her companion, "I don't see why people can't make their homes more home-like and individual. Now I know my living room didn't cost as much to furnish as most of the rooms we were in this afternoon, but it seems to me that it has more of an atmosphere, more individuality, is more home-like."

Whereupon her companion, while outwardly she gave the measure of assent which courtesy demanded, inwardly wondered what the mistress of the homes which they had been visiting thought about the matter. Somehow she felt sure that each of these believed that HER home had an individuality and an atmosphere about it which other homes lacked.

And so she fell to musing,—not on the folly of self-conceit, for the woman who spoke so naively of the superiority of her home is not at all a self-conceited person,—but on that wonderful and beautiful devotion and pride which every normal human being has for the bit of the world he or she calls home.

I used to know a very fine young man for whom, by reason of his brains and ability and his rare personality, the loveliest homes in his town were open. Nay, more than open,—eager. His people were plain folks; their home was old-fashioned and drained to bareness and shabbiness by their struggle to educate their children. One would think that the tremendous contrast between the beautiful homes at which he was such a welcome guest, and his own home, would have been unpleasant to him. On the contrary, he did not seem to feel any such contrast. He enjoyed his own home thoroughly, brought his friends into it and spent as much time in it as was compatible with his many business and social obligations.

You see, there undoubtedly lay across those shabby chairs and threadbare carpets and faded wall papers that strange, transfiguring glamour which the fact that a place is home has power to cast. That house did not look bare and unattractive to him as it did to others; it just looked like home.

It's a wonderful thing, that glamour, isn't it? It's like the leniency you feel toward your own faults. It's like the light of intelligence in your dog's eyes that flames up to greet you and you alone, and makes you see a half-human friend in him where other people see only a clumsy beast. It's like the beauty you see in your mother, however plain she may be.

Home and mother,—they are two of the most beautiful words in the English language and the most beautiful facts in the whole world, aren't they? What would life be without them?

against it if you are pleased to see him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am a boy of 18, good habits, and in love with two very nice girls 18 and 17 years old; one a rich farmer's daughter, the other a poor man's daughter. They both say they love me. Which one would be the best for me? (2)—Does it look well for a boy to dance first and last with the girl he likes? (3)—The girls I love have brothers of my age. Would it look respectable to visit them every Sunday in order to see the girls. UNDECIDED.

(1)—You sound like a Mormon, Sonny. You like both of these girls, but when you're 21 and a man, you will like somebody entirely different. So better wait until then. (2)—A boy generally dances as much as he can with girls he likes best. There's no harm in it. (3)—Visit the girls, if you want to. Don't be deceitful by pretending to visit the brothers.

COMPANY DISHES.

During the holiday season, when there is much entertaining done, a few suggestions may be helpful. The following mince meat should stand some time to season before using: Use a third as much boiled meat as chopped apple, a cup of raisins, a cup of currants, a half cup of shredded citron, one-half pound of chopped suet, a half cup of candied orange peel, a half cup of chopped almonds, a pound of brown sugar, the juice of a lemon and an orange, with mixed spices to taste. A half ounce would be sufficient for this amount.

A cup of grape jelly or a cup of grape juice will improve this recipe. One may add individually to the mince meat by various seasonings.

Marshmallow Pudding.—Soak a fourth of a cup of candied cherries in orange juice to cover over night, then cut in small pieces; cut fine a half cup of walnut meats, add a half pound of marshmallows cut in small pieces, a cup of heavy cream, two tablespoons of powdered sugar and a half teaspoonful of vanilla. Mold and chill.

Frozen Pudding.—Dissolve two tablespoons of powdered gelatin in half a cup of hot water. Cook together a cup of sugar and a cup of water until it forms a thread. Add to this sirup the beaten yolks of three eggs; beat until cool, then add the gelatin. Fold in two cups of whipped cream, a cup of mixed chopped nut meats, a half pound of candied fruits and a half cup of raisins which have been soaked over night in orange juice. Freeze. The candied fruits may be added when packing, and if in layers the dish is very pretty.

If desired, a sauce of sweetened and flavored whipped cream may be served with the pudding.

DIET OF THE VIGOROUS.

A reader asks whether the use of coffee and the common mixture of foods is injurious in his case when he has never noted any injurious effects. So long as the other conditions of health are favorable no injurious results may be noticed from a bad diet, but after middle life or when infection or bad mental conditions are added the system yields to the added burden, when otherwise it might be immune. Chinese coolies work in marshes and drink polluted water and the Japanese soldiers withstood severe hardships in their late war because of their superior diet, requiring much less draft upon the central vitality for digestion than the average European or American's diet. The expenditure of energy for digestion and elimination of incompatible foods is none the less because the constitution of a vigorous person is better able to withstand it than that of a weaker person.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl and have been in love with a young man one year my senior since he was eight years old. I never thought he cared for me until recently. He is going away soon. Would it be proper to ask him to drop me a card occasionally? BLUE EYES.

You are certainly precocious, my dear. In love at eight years!

There will be no harm in asking him to send you an occasional postcard. He will probably do it anyway.

"And I think this word salad was born to do me good."

Salads are good at all seasons, and are by no means a modern invention. They were used years ago by the ancients, but their dressing and seasonings were different, using honey, spices and lemon. Salad making is an art, not jumbling together everything that happens to be in the refrigerator. To be successful in this art one must have some idea of color and form, a keen sense of taste and a desire as well as an aptitude in concocting new salads; wise combinations please first the eye, then the palate and then the stomach.

At one time salads were considered a "fad" or the "fashion," but not so now. These green, succulent vegetables or fruits from which salads are made contain the necessary salts for the blood, and with our more or less artificial manner of living, we require green food in winter almost as much as in the summer. The lemon or acid used in making the dressing for the salad aids in the digestion, and the oil is a most wholesome and easily digested fat. So it can readily be seen that salads are in strict accordance with our well being.

Some one has said, "Salads make you young and beautiful." Just keep clear inside as well as outside and a clear, clean skin and bright eyes must be the result. A French physician has said, "Succulent and carefully prepared food has proven by a series of minute studies to delay the exterior sign of age. It gives brilliancy to the eye, freshness to the skin, strength to the muscles, dissipates wrinkles, and it can be safely said that all women who know what to eat are comparatively ten years younger than those who ignore this science."

A youthful looking wife and a well cooked dinner will make and keep a happy home.

Salad Dressing.

The man or woman today who can invent a new and pleasing salad dressing is considered an artist. It is not so much the variety in material one brings together for a salad as the dainty, delicate changes in seasoning. French dressing is a perfect dressing for a dinner salad. But this may be changed into scores of ways to vary the flavor and the appearance of the dish. Mayonnaise dressing, cooked or uncooked is better for luncheon and supper salads. There are many housekeepers who tell me their family will not eat oil, and they must make the cooked dressing. If so, add only a little butter while cooking and beat

Sadness of Unbelief.

I look upon unbelief as the greatest of calamities. It is the loss of the chief aid of virtue, of the mightiest power over temptation, of the most quickening knowledge of God, of the only sure hope. The unbeliever would gain unspeakably by parting with every possession for the truth which he doubts or rejects.—William Ellery Channing.

Hadn't Come So Far.

"I can trace my descent for 500 years." "Sure enough?" "Yes. How far can you trace your descent?" "Not very far. But I never claimed to have descended so far as you."

To Make Chrysanthemums of Tissue Paper.

A bunch of chrysanthemums would be pretty for Christmas, but they are apt to be too high-priced at this time. A bouquet of them, made from paper can be made so beautiful that you would think them real ones. Follow directions carefully:

Get fine plain tissue paper the color you wish. Cut square six inches each way. Fold the three corners, fold twice more the same way and cut off straight across. You have now a circle cut through to one-half inch; from center cut the strip half-inch wide and round off corners nicely. Stick a hole through the center, open out and there should be 16 long, narrow petals. Lay each petal in left hand and with a buttonhook draw from the point to center. Now you find the petal curling up. Make 10 of these round circles and three smaller ones. Next take wire the length you want the stem. Put on the three smaller ones, bend a little hook, give the petals a little twist to cover the point. Now string on the other 10 and you find a beautiful chrysanthemum.

Good Potato Dishes.

Hantilly potatoes (good for Christmas dinner)—Prepare some nicely seasoned and light mashed potatoes and mound on a platter. Beat half cup of thick cream until stiff. Add half cup of salt cheese grated; season with a pinch of salt and a few grains of paprika. Pile lightly onto potatoes and set on top grate in oven until surface is nicely browned. Be sure that oven is very hot.

Escalloped Potatoes—Wash, pare and cut into thin slices. Put layer of the potatoes in buttered baking dish, sprinkle with salt, pepper, flour and put over it small pieces of butter. Repeat these layers until dish is nearly full. Cover with milk and bake until potato is soft. Buttered bread crumbs may be put over top before baking.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 21. The girl with whom I have been keeping steady company for the past 16 months is 19. We have never quarreled and seem perfectly happy in each other's presence. A friend recently told me that a young man ought to go with several girls before engaging one for his wife. What is your opinion on this?

I have had no desire to go with any other girl since I started with this one though this is the only girl I ever went with. I believe a person's first love is the most likely to be productive of true lasting happiness. Please give your idea of this.

At first she denied any love for me, but now shows her love to be so great that I fear I am not worthy of it. Should I give her up on this account?

What is generally used as an engagement ring and on which finger should it be worn?

SATISFIED. If you're happy, my dear young man, don't follow any advice that will make you unhappy. You have undoubtedly found the right girl and if you are wise, you will stick to her.

Many a young man goes from one girl to another, just as a child picking flowers goes from one field to another, thinking the flowers in the next field must be prettier than the ones close at hand, only to find that they are all alike and that he is too tired to enjoy the last one like he did the very first flower he picked.

A pure first love between two young people comes straight from God and will mean lasting happiness if they both try to have it so.

Most good men feel that they are

CHAPTER II.

"Brick" Hamlin. The two officers looked up with some eagerness, McDonald straightening in his chair, and returning the cavalryman's salute instinctively, his eyes expressing surprise. He was a straight-limbed fellow, slenderly built, and appearing taller than he really was by reason of his erect, soldierly carriage; thin off waist, broad of chest, dressed in rough service uniform, without jacket, just as he had rolled out of the saddle, rough shirt open at the throat, patched, discolored trousers, with broad yellow stripes down the seam, stuck into service riding boots, a revolver dangling at his left hip, and a soft hat, faded sadly, crushed in one hand.

The major saw all this, yet it was at the man's uncovered face he gazed most intently. He looked upon a countenance browned by sun and alkali, intelligent, sober, heavily browsed, with eyes of dark gray rather deeply set; firm lips, a chin somewhat prominent, and a broad forehead, the light colored hair above closely trimmed; the cheeks were darkened by two days' growth of beard. McDonald unclosed, then clenched his hand.

"You are from Fort Union, Captain Travers tells me?"

"Yes, sir," the reply slow, deliberate, as though the speaker had no desire to waste words. "I brought despatches; they were delivered to Captain Travers."

"Yes, I know; but I may require you for other service. What were your orders?"

"To return at convenience."

"Good. I know Hawley, and do not think he would object. What is your regiment?"

"Seventh cavalry."

"Oh, yes, just organized; before that?"

"The Third."

"I see you are a non-com-missary?"

"Sergeant, sir, since my transfer."

"Second enlistment?"

"No, first in the regulars—the Seventh was picked from other commands."

"I understand. You say first in the regulars. Does that mean you saw volunteer service?"

"Three years, sir."

"Ah!" his eyes brightening instantly. "Then how does it happen you failed to try for a commission after the war? You appear to be intelligent, educated?"

The sergeant smiled.

"Unfortunately my previous service had been performed in the wrong uniform, sir," he said quietly. "I was in a Texas regiment."

There was a moment's silence, during which Travers smoked, and the major seemed to hesitate. Finally the latter asked:

"What is your name, sergeant?"

"Hamlin, sir."

The pipe came out of Travers' mouth, and he half arose to his feet. "By all the gods!" he exclaimed. "That's it! Now I've got you placed—you're—you're 'Brick' Hamlin!"

The man unconsciously put one hand to his hair, his eyes laughing at him. "Some of the boys call me that—yes," he confessed apologetically.

Travers was on his feet now, gestulating with his pipe.

"Damn! I knew I'd seen your face somewhere. It was two years ago, at Washita. Say, Dan, this is the right man for you; better than any fledgling West Pointer. Why, he is the same lad who brought in Dugan—you heard about that?"

"Well enough to follow—yes." McDonald was waiting with Carter, and the dim gleam of the lantern revealed his face.

"Remember, sergeant, you are to make her turn back if you can. Tell her I wish her to do so—yes, this letter will explain everything, but she is a pretty high-spirited girl, and may take the bit in her teeth—imagine she'd rather be here with me, and all that. If she does I suppose you'll have to let her have her own way."

McDonald knew as much about Indians as a cow does of music. One morning the young idiot left camp with only one trooper along—Hamlin here—and he was a 'rookie' to follow up what looked like a fresh trail. Two hours later they rode slap into a war party, and the fracas was on. Dugan got a ball through the body at the first fire that paralyzed him. He was conscious, but couldn't move. The rest was up to Hamlin. You ought to have heard Dugan tell it when he got so he could speak. Hamlin dragged the boy down into a buffalo wallow, shot both horses, and got behind them. It was all done in the jerk of a lamb's tail. They had two Henry rifles, and the 'rookie' kept them both hot. He got some of the bucks, too, but of course, we never knew how many. There were twenty in the party, and they charged twice, riding their ponies almost to the edge of the wallow, but Hamlin had fourteen shots without reloading, and they couldn't quite make it. Dugan said there were thirty dead ponies within a radius of ninety feet. Anyhow it was five hours before 'D' trooper came up, and that's what they found when they got there—Dugan laid out, as good as dead, and Hamlin shot twice, and only ten cartridges left. 'Hell,' he added disgustedly, 'and you never even heard of it east of the Missouri!'

There was a flush of color on the sergeant's cheeks, but he never moved.

"There was nothing else to do but what I did," he explained simply. "Any of the fellows would have done the same if they had been up against it the way I was. May I ask, sir, if you first upon one and then the other inquiringly, 'what it was you wanted of me?'

McDonald drew a long breath.

"Certainly, sergeant, sit down—yes, take that chair."

He described the situation in a few words, and the trooper listened quietly until he was done. Travers interrupted once, his voice emerging from a cloud of smoke. As the major concluded, Hamlin asked a question or two gravely.

"How old is your daughter, sir?"

"In her twentieth year."

"Have you a picture of the young lady?"

The major crossed over to his fatigues coat hanging on the wall, and extracted a small photograph from an inside pocket.

"This was taken a year ago," he explained, "and was considered a good likeness then."

Hamlin took the card in his hands, studied the face a moment, and then placed it upon the table.

"You figure she ought to leave Riply on the 18th," he said slowly. "Then I shall need to start at once to make Dodge in time."

"You mean to go then? Of course, you realize I have no authority to order you on such private service."

"That's true. I'm a volunteer, but I'll ask you for a written order just the same. In case my troop commander should ever object, and I'll need a fresh horse; I rode mine pretty hard coming up here."

"You shall have the pick of the stables, sergeant," interjected the cavalry captain, knocking the ashes from his pipe. "Anything else? Have you had rest enough?"

"Four hours," and the sergeant stood up again. "All I require will be two days' rations, and a few more revolver cartridges. The sooner I'm off the better."

It he heard Travers' attempt at conversation as the two stumbled together down the dark hill, he paid small attention. At the stables, aided by a smoky lantern, he picked out a tough-looking buckskin mustang, with an evil eye; and, using his own saddle and bridle, he finally led the half-broken animal outside.

"That buckskin's the devil's own," protested Travers, careful to keep to one side.

"I'll take it out of him before morning," was the reply. "Come on, boy, easy now—easy! How about the rations, captain?"

"Carter will have them for you at the gate of the stockade. Do you know the trail?"

"Well enough to follow—yes."

McDonald was waiting with Carter, and the dim gleam of the lantern revealed his face.

"Remember, sergeant, you are to make her turn back if you can. Tell her I wish her to do so—yes, this letter will explain everything, but she is a pretty high-spirited girl, and may take the bit in her teeth—imagine she'd rather be here with me, and all that. If she does I suppose you'll have to let her have her own way."

McDonald knew as much about Indians as a cow does of music. One morning the young idiot left camp with only one trooper along—Hamlin here—and he was a 'rookie' to follow up what looked like a fresh trail. Two hours later they rode slap into a war party, and the fracas was on. Dugan got a ball through the body at the first fire that paralyzed him. He was conscious, but couldn't move. The rest was up to Hamlin. You ought to have heard Dugan tell it when he got so he could speak. Hamlin dragged the boy down into a buffalo wallow, shot both horses, and got behind them. "Four hours," and the sergeant stood up again. "All I require will be two days' rations, and a few more revolver cartridges. The sooner I'm off the better."

"The real truth was that Hamlin comprehended much more fully than did the men at Devere the danger menacing travelers along the main trail to Santa Fe. News reached Fort Union much quicker than it did that isolated post up on the Cimarron. He knew of the fight in Raton Pass, and that two stages within ten days had been attacked, one several miles east of Bent's Fort. This must mean that a desperate party of raiders had succeeded in slipping past those scattered army details scouting into the northwest. Whether or not these warriors were in any considerable force he could not determine—the reports of their depredations were but rumors at Union when he left—yet, whether in large body or small, they would have a clear run in the Arkansas Valley before any troops could be gathered together to drive them out. Perhaps even now, the stages had been withdrawn, communication with Santa Fe abandoned. This had been spoke of as possible at Union the night he left, for it was well known that there was no cavalry force left at Dodge which could be utilized as guards. The wide map of the surrounding region spread out before him in memory, he felt its brooding desolation, its awful loneliness. Nevertheless he must go on—perhaps at the stage station near the ford of the Arkansas he could learn the truth. So he bent lower over the buckskin's neck and rode straight through the black, silent night.

It was a waterless desert stretching between the Cimarron and the Arkansas, consisting of almost a dead level of alkali and sand, although toward the northern extremity the sand had been driven by the ceaseless wind into grotesque hummocks. The trail, cut deep by traders' wagons earlier in the spring, was still easily traceable for a greater part of the distance, and Hamlin as yet felt no need of caution—this was a country the Indians would avoid, the only danger being from some raiding party from the south. At early dawn he came trotting down into the Arkansas valley, and gazed across at the greenness of the opposite bank. There, plainly in view, were the deep ruins of the main trail running close in against the bluff. His tired eyes caught no symbol of life either up or down the stream, except a thin spiral of blue smoke that slowly wound its way upward. An instant he stared, believing it to be the fire of some emigrant's camp; then realized that he looked upon the smoldering debris of the stage station.

THE BUYERS' ERROR

NEGLECT TO FIGURE THE ADDITIONAL COST OF MAIL ORDER BUYING.

BUSINESS PHILOSOPHY

By Thomas J. Sullivan, copyrighted 1912 by National Business Publicity Association.

The cold figures which indicate the price of the goods sold by catalogue and mail order houses, as set forth in their advertisements, is not by any means the true price, as the "Mailorderist" is careful not to mention the "extra" cost incidental to placing the order and the delivery of the article ordered.

The buyer is influenced by the low catalogue price, rather than by the delivery cost, the latter means of course being the correct way of determining the cost of the article.

To illustrate the point we reproduce herewith a conversation which recently took place in a Western town when a farmer entered the local store and inquired the price of an axe. The price of the axe was $2.00 the merchant said.

"Great Scott," declared the farmer, "I can get the same article from a Chicago Catalogue House for $1.50."

"I can't buy it for that price," said the merchant, "but I will give it to you on the same terms as the mail order house just the same."

"Very well," replied the farmer, "you can wrap it up and charge it to me and when I settle in the fall I will pay for it."

"Oh no you don't," said the dealer, "we are doing business on the same terms as you do business with the mail order house, on cash accounts, hand over the cash please."

The farmer handed over $1.50.

"Now," said the merchant, "five cents for the money order, and two cents for postage."

"What?"

"Sure you must send a letter and a money order to the catalogue house in order to get the axe you know."

The farmer, although desiring to bolt, kept bravely to his agreement, and paid the seven cents.

"Now the express charges, forty-five cents if you please."

"Well by gum," he said and gamely paid it with the remark, "now that I have met all of your demands, hand me over my axe."

"Hand you the axe?" why man where do you think you are, just recollect that you are in Colorado and I am in Chicago, you will have to wait about fifteen days for me to make delivery," and backing up his words with actions he pocketed the money and put the axe back on the shelf, and smilingly turned to wait on the next customer.

The farmer pondered and after he got through with his deductions he said, "that axe will cost me $2.02, that is two cents more than I could have bought it for in the first place, and I am deprived of its use for fifteen days besides, no more mail order houses for me."

The incident related above is one which the merchant and the customer both may read with profit, and if more of the merchants adopted the same tactics as did the Colorado merchant they would have fewer mail order buyers among their customers.

And there is much more to this question than price and delivery; there is often dissatisfaction, inferior, and damaged goods to contend with. In the case of goods being damaged enroute, the buyer has either the prospect of a law suit with the railroad company or a correspondence fight with the catalogue house, neither of which is very inviting.

When a claim is filed against a railroad company, it must be backed with evidence, and the evidence must be arranged in legal form, and to do this of course, the services of a legal man must be secured.

Railroad Companies do not pay claims until their liability is proven beyond any doubt. Often in order to reach a given point goods must be shipped over different lines of road and this also tends to confuse and shift the responsibility and complicate matters so far as the buyer is concerned.

If, on the other hand, the claim is against the catalogue house, after yards of the red tape has been used and the buyer's patience exhausted, he is ordered to return the goods, this necessitates repacking and reshipping, and another long wait before the goods substituted again arrive.

Not infrequently does the buyer, rather than go to all of the expense and trouble incidental to the exchange of an article, allow himself to be imposed upon by accepting the inferior and often valueless article, an article which he is ashamed to own or use.

There can be but one right way to buy goods and that is to have the goods in view of the purchaser. Buying from a picture is a reckless form of gambling in which the advantage is entirely with the seller. He knows what your money is; you do not know what his goods are. Hence, it is heads he wins, and tails you lose.

That the catalogue house always gets the better of the bargain is evidenced by the fact that annually the large mail order houses declare dividends the enormity of which appeals and bewilders the conception of ordinary individuals, who count their profits and savings in pennies rather than in millions.

There is but one right way to buy goods and that way is to see what you buy before you pay for it.

There is but one right way to buy goods and that way is to see what you buy before you pay for it.

WORK OF COLLEGE WOMEN.

Modern social service hath its heroes no less than war.

It is one of the glories of the women's colleges that they should teach that every educated woman owes something to the cause of social welfare, which only may be paid by unselfish service.

Women readily respond to such a plea.

There was Carola Woerishofer, who unfortunately lost her life in an automobile accident while inspecting some labor camps.

Miss Woerishofer, who was a graduate of Bryn Mawr college, was a wealthy young woman, who might have lived a life of ease and luxury. Instead she worked in the city laundries during the hot summer months from early morning until midnight.

She lived out as a domestic, impersonating an immigrant girl, and did the heavy work of a servant.

Why? That she might know the actual conditions under which such women were employed and that she might intelligently work for their betterment.

Can you think of greater self abnegation for a just cause?

Miss Marjorie Johnson also.

Miss Johnson, who is a western girl, a graduate of Wisconsin university, has during several years past spent many a weary day working in department stores and candy shops during the holiday season.

It was voluntary service.

She did it in order that she might know the exact status of these women workers. Out of her experience she has prepared data and arguments with which she will go to the legislature asking for laws regulating the hours of service and conditions under which shopgirls do their work.

These instances are but two of a large number of college women who are zealously engaged in the work of social betterment.

The cause of the weak and oppressed appeals strongly to the woman who knows.

Woman is full of pity.

And centuries of self sacrifice are behind her. Hold up to her the ideal of intelligent effort on behalf of her suffering sisters and you have a heroine in the making.

As unselfishly as she serves her own family will she serve the larger family.

Our Touch of Vanity.

Our companions please us less from the charms we find in their conversation than from those they find in ours.—Greville.

STARTS REVOLUTION IN GAY OLD GOTHAM

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, a leader of New York society, has started a social revolution in Gotham. She insists that late hours and dissipation on the part of the young folks must cease. The social functions over which she presides come to an end at midnight.

"The frivolity," says Mrs. Fish, "the utter lack of religious feeling, the wildness of some of our fashionable leaders is certainly leading toward a social revolution. If something is not done soon I don't know where we will be. And in particular our American society is becoming materialistic and vulgarized."

Useless Mechanism.

The New York inventor who has perfected a machine to tell a man when he is in love seems to be wasting his time and talents. The woman usually has a way of arranging these trifling details.

Plenty for All.

Don't be too generous with the sermon; what you take for yourself is no deprivation of another.—Christian Herald.

More Touching.

Ethereal Creature—"So you hate our sex. Your life has probably never been touched by a woman." Practical One—"Nope, ma'am; but my pocketbook was once."—Judge.

Soporific. "I tell you what I think of your report," said the man who volunteers criticism. "My dear sir," replied Senator Sorghum, "you are not supposed to think about my report. It was designed to help people to forget the entire business."

Great Convenience. "You find that an automobile helps you to keep your engagement?" "It does better than that," replied Mrs. Chuggins. "If you don't want to keep them, it enables you to explain everything by saying you broke down."

Liver and the Conscience. The man whose countenance Shakespeare talks about as being "sicklied o'er by the pale cast of thought" had probably been eating pork chops for supper. The conscience which makes cowards of us all comes from a disordered liver.

Make Little Use of Soap. Only one ounce of soap a head is annually used by the people of India.

Useless Sacrifice. Duncan had eaten, with symptoms of pleasure, his first shrimp; but the mushroom that followed it proved less to his liking. "Mother," he said, pushing the partly eaten agaric to the far edge of his plate, "I wish they hadn't killed that one."—Youth's Companion.

Ideal Teacher. Blessed is the teacher who is not wasteful of words, who is not wasteful of time, who is not wasteful of opportunities, but who is wasteful of smiles.

A Sore Voice. Freddy's mamma was so hoarse one morning that she could scarcely speak. "Why, mamma," said the little fellow, "what a sore voice you've got!"

Probably. Teacher—"Tommy, what would your mother say if you should cover her floor with peanut shells, as you have mine?" Tommy—"Oh, shucks!"—Judge.

Self-sacrifice. "De man dat reaches foh de biggest of everything," said Philosopher Sam, "allus gets left." "All right," replied Erastus Pinkley, "I'll take de worst of it. You kin hab dis small cucumber, an' I'll take de big watermelon."

Mean Man. An Osborne man once let his wife go visiting her folks. The first week she was there he took the home paper and cut out a piece and sent the paper to her. She wondered and wondered and wondered. The next week he did the same thing. She at once packed her telescope and hurried home. He told her it was only a joke and he smiled behind her back for a week.—Kansas City Journal.

Out-Standing Ears. Out-standing ears on an adult can be corrected only by an operation. Ask your family physician to direct you to a good surgeon who does this kind of work. If the operation leaves a scar it will be back of the ear and should be very slight.

Ingenuous Excuse. A teamster charged with overloading his horse was asked how heavy a load he had on his van. "About a ton," he replied, "but it was all light stuff!"
